There is a prostate cancer crisis in the Caribbean.

Our solution: The Great Catch.

Sir Clive needs your help.

The Crisis

- Prostate cancer is the leading cause of cancer death among Caribbean men with one of the highest prostate cancer mortality rates globally
- Despite this the region is significantly underrepresented in Global Research for Prostate Cancer
- Insufficient testing leads to later detection at more deadly stages

Our Solution: The Great Catch

A structured 3-part programme led by Sir Clive Lloyd to reduce prostate cancer mortality for the Caribbean:

1. Global Research Leadership
2. Community Engagement & Stigma Reduction
3. Advanced Testing & Treatment

Foundation Programmes going forward 2026-2030

$60k will start a research programme (PRACTICAL) with the Royal Marsden and Institute of Cancer Research led by Prof. Ros Eeles working on genetic saliva testing with up to 3 countries with connections to Sandals. This is a leading urological genetic study using a spit test to help establish why black men in different countries are so likely to contract and die from Prostate Cancer.

$300k per year will allow us to firmly establish the foundation with its first paid employees and be able to begin a separate feasibility, mental health and research programme led by Prof. Simon Anderson and University of West Indies in at least 3 countries in the Caribbean.

$400k will buy a mobile testing bus similar to the one run in Bermuda by the Daily Male Charity allowing access to men at linked events and in underserved communities.

$500k will help us run a specific 5,000 PSA test campaign with full diagnostic follow ups in different Caribbean countries. This will be a specific partnership programme between the Governments, Hospitals, Urologists and The Caribbean Public Health Agency designed to test the impact of large scale testing and which will be designed in a modular fashion to enable a large scale roll out of testing and treatment for the region.
